corner stone laying for the lows Historias building.

In my position as plenipotentiary, said Mr Kasson, 'I am brought constantly in contact with the evidences of American commercial expansion. As to the effect on American commerce in the Orient of holding or relinquishing the Philippinos, I can only say that the matter is plain to any man who has at hand the information as to the advantages of holding a depot, an entrepot to the great Orient. With the Philippinos we would have a hase of operations, a magnificent harbor and all the advantages incident to holding a powerful situation in the East. The American firms of Russell & Oc. and Forbes & Co. formerly gave American a great power in the Orient. They were American houses, but have withdrawn from that part of the world.
